

Muscle Energy (M.E.T.): The Way Fred Mitchell, Sr., DO, FAAO Taught and Utilized It

Date: November 7-9, 2025

Location: OU-HCOM Dublin Campus, Dublin, OH

Course Director: Edward G. Stiles, DO, FAAODist

Register online at www.academyofosteopathy.org

Course Description

The course will stress the basic principles Fred Sr. utilized when he developed both his MET tutorial's curriculum and the techniques he utilized in his practice.

During the course, we will discuss the principles for each area, demonstrate the MET technique options and practice the techniques involving the following areas: Lumbar, Sacrum, Innominates and Lower Extremities. Mitchell Sr. "fine-tuned" his techniques to each patient's uniqueness but unfortunately, he never published that material.

We will also discuss Mitchell's unique OPP clinical problem-solving strategies.

Continuing Medical Education

20 credits of AOA Category 1-A CME are anticipated.

Course Director

Edward G. Stiles, DO, FAAODist is a 1965 graduate of ATSU-Kirksville and completed an internship at Waterville Hospital in Waterville, Maine. From 1968 to 1973, he took over and ran the practice of internationally recognized osteopathic physician Perrin T. Wilson, DO, in Cambridge, Massachusetts, and in 1973, he established the first hospital-based osteopathic manipulative treatment service in the country at Waterville Osteopathic Hospital, where he served as director until 1978.

Dr. Stiles then established an OMT practice in Norman, Oklahoma, and he served as professor and chair of the Osteopathic Principles and Practice (OPP) Department at the Oklahoma State University College of Osteopathic Medicine. He has also served as a clinical professor of biomechanics at the Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine in East Lansing, as professor and chair of the OPP Department at the University of Pikeville–Kentucky College Osteopathic Medicine and as director of musculoskeletal medicine at Pikeville Medical Center.

Dr. Stiles has been the recipient of the American Osteopathic Association's A.T. Still Memorial Lecture Award and the Great Pioneers of Osteopathic Medicine Award. He has also received the Scott Memorial Lecture Award, the Northup Memorial Lecture Award, the Harold A. Blood, DO, FAAO, Memorial Lecture Award and the A.T. Still Medallion of Honor and FAAO Distinguished Service Award from the American Academy of Osteopathy. Dr. Stiles was also interviewed by The DO in June 2024 as one of several trailblazing osteopathic physicians in celebration of osteopathic medicine's 150th anniversary.
